“High-end homes, both custom and speculative, require a high degree of craftsmanship—the result of honed skill sets and fundamental understandings of the built environment,” says Harry Hollub, who along with his interior designer sister, Helene Hollub, oversee the family owned company responsible for numerous, luxuriously appointed South Florida homes since its 1954 inception. Watching their father, Marvin Hollub, innovate, inspire and execute quality projects when they were younger, Helene and Harry continue to uphold the client-oriented methodology that has earned Hollub Homes such time-honored success and recognition. “We have established an esteemed presence in the local and neighboring communities—among both homeowners and the talented contractors we have worked with for more than 40 years. Our long-lasting relationships speak highly of our commitment to excellence,” says Helene, whose interior design services contribute to the firm’s all-encompassing approach. Adds Harry, “Our experience has enabled us to familiarize ourselves with a variety of styles and techniques, building and designing homes that stand the test of time.” Well-established and on the leading edge, Hollub Homes prides itself on its incorporation of energy-efficient materials and durable designs. “After Hurricane Andrew, we received thank-you notes from clients whose homes were virtually untouched. Nothing inspires us more than a satisfied customer and a quality end result that proudly bears the Hollub Homes name.”
